

Elmore, Grace Brown. A Heritage of Woe: The Civil War Diary of Grace Brown Elmore, 1861-1868. Edited by Marli F. Weiner. Athens: University of Georgia Press, 1997.

Religion and communion, 7-9
Port Royal, 11
Revenge, the black flag, 11-12
Times that test women's strength, 12
Resurrection and atonement, 15
Questions about men and advance of Yankees, 21-22
Soldiers, and faithful slaves, faithful family slaves, 22-24
Thinking about God, 25-26
God and the war, 28-29
Confederate victories, 33-34
Death of a Confederate soldier from fever, 34
Marriage, 40
Truth and God, 50-51
Federal troops in South Carolina, attacking battery Wagner, 51
God afflicting Confederates, 52
Selfishness, 61-62
Love of power, French revolution, 62-63
Chaplain, army missions, soldiers praying in midst of battle, 71-72
Cooking, 75
Yankee mistreatment of prisoners, hatred of Yankees, revenge, 78-80
Sherman and Columbia, government, people, patriotism and self sacrifice, 80-81
Sherman and wicked Yankee generals, 81-82
Galvanized Yankees, 82
Christmas, 82-84
Sherman, Savannah, and South Carolina, 84-85
Yankee threat to Columbia, slaves, 85-86
Gloomy end of year, 87
Religion in time of sorrow, 88
Preparing for Yankees, bazaar, 88-89, 93-95
Doubts about moral strength of Confederate men, 89
Women and supplies for hospital, 91-92
Wheeler's cavalry and stealing, 92
Women and worried and men including Hood and Johnston try to reassure them, 95-96
Sherman's army and Columbia, 99-104
Rumors about Sherman and women in danger in Columbia, 105
Food, 106
Slavery and future of black race, 107-8
Ruins of Columbia, 108
Slaves and Yankees, 110
Slaves and overseer, 111
Dark days of the Confederacy and God's protecting care, 113-14
Lee surrender, soldiers passing, 114-15
Lee surrender, armistice, war with England and France, Lincoln assassination, 115-16