

Bartelson, Frederick A. Letters from Libby Prison. Edited by Margaret W. Peele. New York: Greenwich Book Publishers, 1956.

Colonel, 100th Illinois Infantry
Opportunities of prison life, 15
Prisoner escape, 16-19
Punishment for insulting a guard, 17-18
Letters, 20
Escaped prisoner captured, 21
Rumor of prisoner exchange, 21
Prison food, 21
Breckinridge, Butler, prisoner exchange, black troops, paroles, 21-31
Suffering of prisoner, retaliation, 26-27
Rations, food for prisoners, 26
Artillery, 31
Bad shooting, little target practice in the army, 31-32
Rumor of exchange, 32
Cannot trust the appearance of faces, 32-33
Boxes, 33
Need for gradual reform, and no imposition of opinion, 33-34
Large escape of prisoners, 34ff
Boxes, 35-36
Family affections in America and Europe, 36
Discipline and manners, impact of the war, 37
Butler and prisoner exchange, 41-42
Letters, 42
Sabbath and battles, 43
Fort Donelson, 43-44
United States and European nations, Russia, 44-45
Food, Catholic priest, 45
Louis Wigfall, 47
Boxes, 47
Confederate cause, God, religion, slavery, 48-49
Boxes, 49
Deserters, 49-50
Prison roll call, 51
South Bishop Lynch, sermon, 52
Searching prisoners for weapons, 52-53
Low character of politics, especially in cities, 53-54
Miscegenation, 54
Escape of prisoners, 56-57
Box, 57
Augusta, 58
Music, 60
Little difference between Union and Confederate soldiers, 60-61
Longstreet, Bragg, western Confederate troops versus eastern Confederate troops, 65

Atlanta, 65-66
Chaplain, sermons, recreation, Bishop of Richmond, 69
Hospitals, 70
Differential treatment of prisoners, 70-71
Boxes, 71
Falsehoods in newspapers, 74-75
Dahlgren's raid on Richmond, 76-78
Rumor of prisoner exchange, 78-79
Washington, 80ff
Brutal treatment of prisoners, eating a dog, 82-83
July 4 in Libby Prison, 84-88
Death and funeral of Bartelson, 89-95