

Marx, Karl and Frederick Engels, The Civil War in the U.S. New York: International Publishers, 1961.

Karl Marx, New York Tribune articles

American Question in England, slavery, Cuba, 3-15

British Cotton Trade, Manchester, 15-19

London Times on the New Orleans Princes in America, 20-25

European intervention Mexico, newspapers, Mexican bondholders, 25-34

Trent affair, impact of the news in England, Palmerston, English opinion, 34-54

Part Two Marx and Engels—articles from Vienna Presse

The North American Civil War, British press, reviews coming of the war, slavery question, 58-71

Peaceful secession, geography, slave population, free population, seceding states, oligarchy, border states, Lincoln and Frémont, 71-83

Blockade, cotton crisis in England, 83-87

Economic interests in England, cotton speculation, 88-91

Mexican intervention, France, England Palmerston, 92-97

Dismissal of Frémont, Lincoln, Missouri, 97-100

Trent affair, Seward, French and British interests, Mason, Slidell, 100-120

Lincoln cabinet and the European powers, Palmerston, Manchester, 121-23

English opinion, Trent affair, Palmerston, English newspapers, 123-27

French newspapers, Seward, Trent affair, 128-30

British opinion, antiwar, pro-American, Trent affair, 130-33

Seward, Trent affair, suppressed dispatch, 134-36

Lord John Russell and the Trent affair, Seward, 136-39

London Workers meeting, stoppages of factories, pro-North, false newspaper opinion, 139-43

Liverpool, English opinion against intervention in American war, 144-47

Cotton crisis, 147-50

Parliamentary debate on queen's speech, Mexico, United States, Lord Derby, Disraeli, 150-55

Lincoln, removal of McClellan as general in chief, Stanton, McClellan Fabian tactics, Cameron, 155

Confederate friends in Parliament, blockade, odd alliances, Mason, Slidell, Yancey, 160-64

American Civil War, secessionist conspiracy, short term enlistments, Bull Run, Confederate mistakes in the West, Mill Springs, Fort Henry and Donelson, 164-71

Fort Donelson, Nashville, Union leadership, McClellan, Anaconda, decisive campaigns will be Kentucky and Tennessee, 172-77

France, Mexico, Louis Napoleon, debts, bankers, 177-79

Fall of New Orleans, English press, newspapers skeptical of the news, minimized advantage for Federals, Confederate press, 180-83, 185-86

Slave trade treaty, 183-85

Beauregard, 186

McClellan incompetent, Peninsula campaign, Williamsburg, Heintzelman, 186-89

Possible guerrillas war, 189-90

British indifferent to brutal treatment of women now outraged by Butler's woman order, Palmerston, 191-94

Debate on Mexico and possible French alliance, 195-98

Eastern and western theaters, McClellan, Democratic generals, too easy on slaveholders, border states, abolition party, 198-201
Lincoln, cautious border state man, Wendell Phillips, Gerrit Smith, Garrison, McClellan, Jefferson Davis, 201-6
Bragg and Kentucky, Perryville, northern operations on inland rivers, Lincoln summoning 300,000, European immigration and Union army, 206-210
Democrats and elections, dismissal of McClellan, Emancipation Proclamation, Burnside, 210-14
English neutrality, the Alabama, Confederate newspaper on increasing Union sea power, 214-17

Part Three Correspondence Karl Marx and Frederick Engels

John Brown and slaves in America, 221-22

Winfield Scott, 222

Slaves and secessionists, 222

Secret southern conspiracy, Lincoln call for troops, Washington, Missouri Germans, 223-25

Big Bethel, 226

Marx asks a series of questions about the military situation, northern opinion, 226-27

Manassas Junction, position, Big Bethel, Scott, northern soldiers, 227-28

Much opposition to secession except in South Carolina, quotations from southern newspapers, 228-32

Trent affair, Palmerston, 233-35

Tribune, McClellan in league with Democrats, arrest of Charles Stone, 235-36

Union gunboats, victories in Tennessee, 236

English exports, peace prospects, Mexico, 236-39

Corinth, Beauregard, Shiloh, 239-40

McClellan, McDowell, Frémont, 241

Greeley, Tribune, McClellan, Manassas, 242

French in Mexico, 242

Questions whether northerners are in earnest, 242-43

McClellan and the Peninsula, 243-44

Capture of New Orleans, Beauregard, Corinth, 243-44

Fate of Confederate armies hangs on a single battle, 244-45

Confederates blow up Merrimac (Virginia), 245-46

Northern paper money, English opinion, northern debt, 246-47

Halleck and Corinth, 247

Disease in army, Halleck, Stanton, suspension of recruiting, Curtis, Sigel, size of Union forces, 247-50

Stanton, McClellan, McDowell, Frémont, Banks, 250

Defeats, failure to wage war in a revolutionary way, stupid generals, 250-51

Confederates in earnest, 251-52

Border states, McClellan, northerners divided, southerners unified, political problem of getting 300,000 more volunteers, problem with selecting generals, 252-53

Second Bull Run, Stonewall Jackson, Pope, 253-54

Antietam campaign and border states, 255-57

War finances, paper money, 257-58

National existence and Yankee will, Democratic victories, 258-59

New York elections, Democrats, McClellan, Lincoln and emancipation, 259-60

Confederates' desperate situation, Corinth, conscription, Democratic victories, McClellan, Hooker, 260-61
Christian slave nature of British workers, aristocratic sympathy for slavery, 261-62
Burnside, Fredericksburg, errors in strategy, 262-63
Treason in War Department, McClellan, Burnside, Democrats, 263-64
London Times on workingmen's meetings in Manchester, Sheffield, and London, 264
Letters of Marque, Seward, Trent affair, 265-66
Rosecrans, Hooker, 266
Vicksburg, 266
Lee and Gettysburg, 266-67
Times of London, Confederate loan, northerners and southern ports, 267
Grant's strategy, 267
Butler, Beauregard, Petersburg, 269
Lee and Petersburg, Grant impatience, 269-71
Critical American situation, possible Grant and Sherman victories, Lincoln's reelection, Confederate press, 271-72
Siege of Richmond, 272
Address of the First International to Lincoln, 273-74, 279-81
1865, campaign against Richmond will be decisive, 274
Lee running away, a shabby fellow, 275
Follow of Confederates in Lincoln assassination, applauds sternness of Andrew Johnson, confiscation, 275-76
Address of First International to Andrew Johnson, 276, 283-85
Andrew Johnson's policy, racism, 276-77